Haynes Boone's Government Contracts Transactions team focuses on addressing the unique challenges that arise in mergers and acquisitions, loans, joint ventures, spin-offs and other corporate transactions in the government contracts sector.

Our team regularly works in collaboration with Haynes Boone's Corporate lawyers to counsel clients regarding potential risks, resolve legal issues and structure transactions to maximize value and minimize exposure. Our team also often partners with corporate attorneys from other firms who make use of our government contracts expertise.

Whether representing large defense contractors, technology companies, small businesses or private equity firms, our team delivers tailored, strategic counsel in this complex, highly regulated environment. With years of experience, we understand how to address regulatory considerations in negotiations, and we bring valuable insights on how similar transactions in the market have successfully reached completion.

Representative government contracts-related M&A and due diligence matters include:
