Given its complexity and frequent modifications, immigration law represents significant commercial and regulatory obstacles to the employment of key foreign personnel in the U.S. Our firm has the client-centric focus, depth and breadth of experience in the immigration sub-specialties that businesses require.

We work diligently to ensure that our clients maintain a solid understanding of the immigration laws that directly impact their organizations. We help our clients customize their immigration processes into meaningful methods for attracting global talent. Our combined client response practices and technology produce case feedback which is both timely and continuing.

Our ability to provide a broad array of immigration-related legal services such as audits, compliance, tax, investment and business formation, employment law, and white-collar/government enforcement defense services has proven valuable to clients of all sizes. Our foreign language capabilities and experience living and working abroad allow us to comfortably serve our clients in any corner of the world.

We have the ability to tackle the full spectrum of immigration matters, including:
