At Haynes and Boone, we have long been aware of the value of copyright protection, and the potent remedies available in copyright litigation. Our extensive copyright skills have been honed through experience and commitment. We have protected and enforced our clients' copyrighted works for decades, including computer code and interfaces, famous characters and well-known logos, apparel and shoe designs, and written and artistic works. We regularly are asked to handle matters regarding evolving technologies, including software, Internet materials, advertisements and broadcast transmissions. Our lawyers establish and manage enforcement programs for clients, and help them maximize their intellectual property protection through effective use of copyrights.

We have successfully represented clients in key copyright trial and appellate venues in Texas, New York and California, as well as numerous other trial and appellate courts around the country.
