

Media Entertainment and First Amendment Newsletter October 2025

November 3, 2025 Laura Prather, Thomas Williams, Errol Brown, Tiffany Ferris, Joseph Lawlor, Catherine Robb, Ryan Paulsen, Reid Pillifant, Michael Lambert

PRACTICES AI and Deep Learning, Anti-SLAPP and First Amendment Rights, Sports Law, Media and Entertainment Litigation, Social Media, Media Entertainment and Sports

Haynes Boone's Media, Entertainment and First Amendment Practice Group has extensive experience representing major media clients across all platforms – including newspapers, magazines, broadcast and cable networks, production companies, and online content providers – in high-profile disputes. Our team brings deep knowledge to a broad range of matters, including libel, intellectual property, and access to information. Our lawyers present frequently on issues facing the industry and have been leaders in drafting legislation to address cutting-edge issues affecting free speech and transparency.

The Media and Entertainment and First Amendment Newsletter for October 2025 has just been published, covering many topics within this important area of law. Some of the articles include:

As Deepfakes Proliferate Legal Protections Struggle to Keep Pace

Ninth Circuit Eliminates Right of Immediate Appeal from Denials of California Anti-SLAPP Motions

Defamation in the AI Age

Lawlor, Ferris and Kleiman in Ad Age: Influencer Fraud and Deceptive Reviews

Prather in The Texas Lawbook: The Truth About the TCPA

You can read the full newsletter here.