Welcome to the Autumn 2025 Shipping and Energy Newsletter.

In our third newsletter for 2025, we cover a wide range of topics, from limitations of liability in energy contracts to financing in the mining sector and the impact of recent restructurings in the energy sector.

What are the implications for ship owners of the Hong Kong Convention? We review its interrelationship with existing regulation.

The latest edition of our guide to drafting limitation of liability clauses is now available. We also consider how the increased demand for nuclear energy is driving innovation in African mining finance and share updates on some of the projects the London team has advised on in the energy sector.

This issue also features articles on the impact of contractual hierarchies on the interpretation of arbitration clauses, the different approaches to design liability under U.S. and English law and the relevance of the Arbitration Act 2025 to American companies.
