Haynes Boone Partner Phil Kim commented in a Bloomberg Law article about COVID-19-related questions that healthcare attorneys are fielding from their clients.

Here is an excerpt:

Whether it's telehealth or elective procedures, privacy protections or COVID-19 screening, Bloomberg Law has the top questions — and answers — from lawyers helping health-care professionals respond to the pandemic.

Q: How are health-care providers — like dentists — who perform elective procedures affected by COVID-19?

“On March 16, 2020, the American Dental Association recommended dentists nationwide postpone elective procedures for at least three weeks in order to concentrate on emergency dental care and alleviate the burden that dental emergencies would place on hospital emergency departments,” said Phil Kim, a partner with Haynes Boone in Dallas.
