Dallas-based law firm Haynes Boone LLP is bulking up its Orange County office, with corporate practice group member Martin Florman among five partner additions since September.

“The more I learned, the more exceptional I found the firm,” Florman told the Business Journal on Feb. 15.

Florman, an M&A, venture capital and corporate partner, joined directly from Buchalter, where he spent more than 16 years in management.

Paul Tobin, also a corporate practice group partner, joined Haynes Boone OC in early January, like Florman coming from Buchalter.

Partners Elizabeth Weldon and Kevin Crisp, both litigators, joined the firm in Costa Mesa late last year.

Transactional partner David Hengstler joined the Orange County office in Costa Mesa in late February.

The additions boost Haynes Boone’s local practice to 31 attorneys; it ranks No. 31 in a four-way tie on this week’s list of largest law firms in OC.

The firm counts over 40 major practice areas, with a focus on energy, technology, financial services and private equity.
