Haynes Boone has been named a finalist for Fund Financing: Advisory Services in the 2022 Drawdown Awards, which celebrate excellence and innovation within private capital fund operations.

The Drawdown Awards are judged by a panel of leading industry practitioners, including leading private capital fund COOs, CFOs, CCOs, GCs and CTOs. The award for Fund Financing: Advisory Services recognizes advisors in the private equity fund finance space who have delivered across the board through business/client growth, innovation, and client servicing in the calendar year of 2021. Success in this category depends on a mixture of client and revenue growth, breadth of solutions offered, new services, or brand developments that demonstrate new thinking and have been well-received by the sector and top-notch service standards backed-up by glowing client testimonials.

The winners will be recognized on June 9 in London.

“This recognition is a testament to our fund finance capabilities in London and globally,” said Partner Emma Russell, head of the firm’s Finance Practice Group in the London office. “We also want to thank our clients for entrusting us with the types of significant transactions that have allowed us to rank among the industry leaders in fund finance. ”

Finance is one of Haynes Boone’s core strengths in the London office. The firm has extensive experience in fund finance, acquisition finance, refinancings, corporate facilities, real estate finance and financial institutions lending (including non-bank lenders and insurance), in each case across a broad range of industry sectors. It regularly advises financial sponsors, lenders, borrowers, investors, fund managers, and central banks in relation to those core areas.

Haynes Boone is a global leader in representing U.S. and foreign commercial and investment banks arranging capital commitment subscription financings (or capital call/subscription financing) for private equity funds in North America, Europe, Latin America and Asia.
