Haynes Boone advised Bingham & Taylor, a Virginia-based manufacturer of critical underground utility access solutions for essential North American water and gas infrastructure, in its sale to Charlotte Pipe and Foundry Company in conjunction with Neenah Foundry, a wholly owned subsidiary of Charlotte Pipe.

Founded in 1849, Bingham & Taylor has built a 175-year legacy of providing high-quality meter and valve access products and has become an iconic brand in the water and gas industry with products installed throughout North America. The acquisition combines Bingham & Taylor's established brand reputation and wide distribution network with Charlotte Pipe's manufacturing expertise and Neenah Foundry's waterworks market presence. Bingham & Taylor will continue to operate under its well-known brand name while benefiting from expanded resources and capabilities.
