RELATED PRACTICES Corporate, Tax, Capital Markets and Securities

A cross-border team of Haynes Boone lawyers represented Nano Dimension Ltd. (Nasdaq: NNDM), a leading provider of advanced digital manufacturing technologies, in its divestiture of Global Inkjet Systems Limited (GIS) to QTREX Quantum Ltd. (Nasdaq: QTEX) in a $16 million equity transaction.

The transaction, completed Nov. 16, 2026, provides Nano Dimension with $16 million in base consideration in QTREX equity securities, including ordinary shares and pre-funded warrants, as well as additional warrants exercisable at $1.21 per share.

The Haynes Boone team was led by Partners Rick Werner, Alla Digilova and Simin Sun, with support from Associates Brent Duddles, Lisa Vasek, Sydney Fox and Adam Harrison.

The deal team was assisted by U.S. Tax Partner Sam Lichtman, as well as a multidisciplinary team from the firm's London office consisting of UK Tax Partner Alexandra Ueno-Park, Corporate Counsel Natalie Georgiou and Corporate Associate Christopher Orford.

"Transactions like this require thoughtful structuring and the ability to execute efficiently as timelines evolve," said Werner, co-chair of the firm's Capital Markets and Securities Practice Group. "We were pleased to work alongside Nano Dimension on this strategic transaction and help bring it to completion."

Based in the United Kingdom, GIS develops advanced control electronics, software and fluid delivery systems for industrial manufacturing applications. Its technologies and engineering capabilities complement QTREX's quantum computing solutions, particularly its development and commercialization of advanced cryogenic interconnects.

Nano Dimension structured the transaction to retain meaningful exposure to GIS's future growth through an equity position in QTREX. The divestiture advances Nano Dimension's broader strategy of monetizing non-core assets while creating potential long-term value for shareholders.
