Haynes Boone Releases Latest Issue of HB Connections, Highlighting Alumni Career Journeys and Lasting Connections

November 19, 2026

Haynes Boone has released the second issue of the eighth volume of HB Connections, the firm's alumni magazine, featuring stories that explore the many directions a legal career can take and the relationships that continue to connect alumni to the Haynes Boone community.

“Our alumni remain an important part of the Haynes Boone community, and the paths they continue to forge reflect the strength and reach of that connection,” said Chair and Firmwide Managing Partner Taylor Wilson.

The latest issue highlights three alumni and one current lawyer whose careers span nonprofit leadership, in-house legal departments, international finance and life after Big Law, offering perspectives on professional growth, lifelong learning, mentorship and embracing new opportunities.

Featured stories include:

- Ann Whitley Wood discusses her transition from practicing law to nonprofit fundraising and her work helping shape the future of Dallas' Katy Trail.
- Taylor Rex Robertson reflects on balancing a global in-house legal career at Sabre with a passion for wine education, offering lessons in adaptability, curiosity and growth.
- Buddy Clark, former co-chair of Haynes Boone's Energy Practice Group, shares how retirement has become a "renaissance" focused on learning new skills, building lasting projects and remaining connected to the firm he helped shape for more than 25 years.
- Danny Wang recounts a career that has taken him from Australia to Beijing, Hong Kong and New York before ultimately returning to Haynes Boone as a finance associate with a renewed appreciation for mentorship, collaboration and firm culture.
