Haynes Boone is listed among leaders in U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC) Section 337 investigations in a new ITC Intelligence Report from Patexia Inc., an intellectual property analytics company.

In the first-of-its-kind report, Patexia evaluated nearly 400 law firms and analyzed data from ITC cases from January 2014-December 2019. The report ranks ITC law firms and attorneys based on their performance and activity.

The report states that Haynes Boone has a growing ITC practice and is currently among the Top 20 Most Active firms for representing complainants. It quotes Partner Ken Parker: “In ITC cases, everything happens in real time. Because our teams work so well together, we really enjoy bringing all of the focused effort and creativity required to crystallize complicated issues quickly and persuasively.”

For all the terminated cases, it identified the outcome such as violation, no violation and settlement. Then, depending on the outcome and win/loss of parties, it allocated points to each side, including the law firms and attorneys representing them to calculate their performance.

The Haynes Boone IP litigation team has successfully prepared and tried scores of Section 337 investigation trials and hearings before the ITC, relying not only on extensive courtroom experience but on particular knowledge of the ITC rules and procedures. The firm’s teams are well-suited to meet the high demands of ITC cases and obtain the best possible results for clients.

Haynes Boone is an international corporate law firm with offices in Texas, New York, California, Charlotte, Chicago, Denver, Washington, D.C., London, Mexico City and Shanghai, providing a full spectrum of legal services in energy, technology, financial services and private equity. With more than 575 lawyers, Haynes Boone is ranked among the largest U.S.-based firms by The National Law Journal, The American Lawyer and The Lawyer. It also ranks among the nation’s most recommended law firms by general counsel, according to BTI Consulting Group’s “Most Recommended Law Firms 2019” report.
