PRACTICES Fund Finance, Finance

Holly Loftis has joined Haynes Boone as a partner in the firm's growing Charlotte, N.C., office.

Holly routinely advises banks and other financial institutions on structuring, negotiating, and documenting both syndicated and bilateral subscription credit facilities, along with other fund finance products. Holly has been a part of the growing Fund Finance industry since 2008, when she began her legal career as a summer associate in the Finance Practice at Mayer Brown focusing on subscription credit facilities. With her 10-plus years of experience, she brings a deep understanding of the product and of fund governing documentation, including limited partnership agreements, investor side letters, and subscription documentation, which play a critical role in the strength of the product.

She was most recently a Charlotte-based Special Counsel with the Finance Practice Group at Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft LLP. In addition to Holly, Haynes Boone has hired two other lawyers from Cadwalader's Fund Finance practice: Associates Eric Worthington and Mark Nesdill.

Eric represents banks, financial institutions and corporate clients in a variety of lending transactions with a focus on fund finance and has represented lenders in bilateral and syndicated fund financings, many of which include lender commitments exceeding one billion dollars. Mark focuses on fund finance and represents banks and financial institutions as lenders and lead agents in structuring, negotiating, and documenting both bilateral and syndicated subscription credit facilities, along with other fund finance products, and was included in the 2022 edition of Best Lawyers in America: Ones to Watch in Banking and Finance Law (Charlotte).

A Charlotte resident for the last 11 years, Holly said she was thrilled to hear that Haynes Boone had opened a Charlotte office and was drawn to the firm because of its experience and reputation in the marketplace for fund finance. "Haynes Boone is a true pioneer in this space, as it was first law firm to structure and engineer the product in the late 1980s. Given the firm's 30-plus years of experience, paired with the massive team of dedicated lawyers, clients have an advantage when using Haynes Boone," she said.

Haynes Boone Finance Partner Todd Cubbage, who heads the Charlotte office, said: "Holly brings a wealth of experience handling sophisticated fund finance transactions. Eric and Mark, likewise, are phenomenal additions, allowing us to continue our growth and momentum in Charlotte and in our finance practice firmwide.”
