

Tom Chen, Theresa Conduah, Annie Allison Featured in World IP Review's Diversity Report: 'Moving the Needle in IP'

October 14, 2022 Tom Chen, Annie Allison

PRACTICES Intellectual Property, Copyright, Design Patents, Social Media, Technology Transactions, Patents, Patent Prosecution and Counseling, Patent Litigation, Trademark Prosecution, Trademark and Advertising, Trademark Cancellations and Oppositions, Patent Office Trials, Media and Entertainment Litigation, Streaming Media

Haynes Boone Partners Tom Chen and Theresa Conduah and Associate Annie Allison are featured in World Intellectual Property Review's Diversity 2022 issue for their efforts to support diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) at the firm.

Tom is listed as one of 30 Global Diversity Champions; Theresa is one of 50 Influential Women in IP; and Annie is one of 20 2022 Trailblazers.

Read excerpts of the lawyers' Diversity 2022 profiles below. Also read an article in the publication in which Tom, Theresa and Annie write about ways Haynes Boone and the firm's IP group are driving meaningful change in the legal profession.

Tom Chen:

Tom Chen is a member of Haynes Boone's executive committee and a partner in the firm's IP department. Chen manages patent matters from start-ups to Fortune 100 companies. He is co-chair of Haynes Boone's attorney DEI committee.

Theresa Conduah:

Theresa Conduah is a partner in the firm's IP practice group. She focuses her practice on advising clients on IP prosecution and brand protection matters. She is co-chair of the firm's Black Lawyers Alliance and is a frequent speaker on diversity in intellectual property law.

Annie Allison:

Annie Allison is an associate in the IP practice group at Haynes Boone. She provides transactional and litigation IP legal services including trademark prosecution, copyright clearance and registration, rights enforcement strategies, brand management and licensing for media, entertainment, fashion and technology companies.

Click here to see WIPR Diversity 2022.