Having advised institutional investors, fund managers, and investment managers for more than 25 years, Ric knows what's market and has a multi-dimensional view of all aspects of investment transactions. He brings this range of experience and keen insight to his work structuring, analyzing, reviewing, and negotiating investments. Ric's clients include emerging managers, start-ups, and multi-billion dollar managers and funds.

Both U.S. and non-U.S. clients turn to Ric for advice on matters relating to the U.S. Investment Advisers Act of 1940, the U.S. Investment Company Act of 1940, and the Commodity Exchange Act, as well as SEC, FINRA, NFA, CFTC, and Blue Sky compliance issues.

Clients appreciate Ric's business-minded advice and creative problem solving. One longtime client notes, "Ric brings a remarkable balance of skills to his practice of law. Yes, he knows his subject matter, but he also understands the practical realities of business and regulatory issues." Another observes that "the major factor that makes him different is that he is an astute businessman" who "really helps grow your business, keeps you out of trouble and knows how to fix things when something goes wrong." Clients describe Ric as "a true fiduciary of the highest caliber." His responsive and practical approach has made him a "go-to" lawyer in the alternative asset space.

Ric is a frequent lecturer and panelist at industry conferences, where he is called upon to discuss regulatory and fund structuring issues.
