PRACTICES Aviation, Corporate, Mergers and Acquisitions, International

Mario Silva Díaz Córdova is an associate in the International Practice Group at Haynes Boone's Mexico City office. He focuses his practice on corporate law, mergers and acquisitions, aviation, financing, and trusts, advising both domestic and international clients on complex transactions, including cross-border acquisitions, corporate reorganizations, and the formation of investment vehicles. His work centers on drafting and negotiating key commercial agreements such as share and asset purchase agreements, investment agreements, and credit and security arrangements as well as preparing corporate documentation and coordinating due diligence processes to support the implementation and expansion of business operations.

Mario also has significant experience in structuring investment, collateral, and administrative trusts, working closely with trust institutions, financial entities, and public notaries. He began his career in criminal litigation, gaining a strong foundational understanding of legal practice, and later transitioned into corporate and tax matters, where he participated in legal audits, business restructurings, and tax administrative proceedings, strengthening his technical and regulatory expertise in corporate operations.
