PRACTICES International, Mexico

Francisco Gaytán is an associate in the International Transactions Practice Group in Haynes Boone's Mexico City office. His practice focuses on providing corporate advice to both domestic and multi-national companies in Mexico, including corporate and cross-border issues, regulatory compliance, foreign investment, mergers and acquisitions, contractual negotiations, and financial transactions.

Francisco has advised clients from a wide array of sectors including in the telecommunications, energy, retail, automotive, manufacturing, aviation, and agricultural industries.

Additionally, Francisco has relevant experience assisting foreign clients and multi-national companies regarding their operations in Mexico, including advice on the set-up stage of their investments, employment and regulatory compliance, company incorporation, foreign investment authorizations, financial operations, and asset sales/purchases.

Francisco's practice previously focused on commercial and constitutional litigation, which allows him to provide a multi-disciplinary approach to his corporate practice, identifying methods to reduce potential liabilities and contingencies which may affect client transactions.
