PRACTICES Intellectual Property, Intellectual Property Litigation, Patent Office Trials, AI and Deep Learning, Technology Contracts Litigation

Eugene is the Chicago IPR Team Lead and serves as the Chicago office hiring partner at Haynes Boone. Additionally, he co-chairs the AI and Deep Learning Practice Group. He is an experienced trial lawyer that represents clients in complex patent matters involving technologies from consumer goods to high technology, networking, and wireless telephony to medical devices and therapeutics. He has extensive experience and regularly serves as first-chair trial counsel in post-grant review trials (IPR and PGR) on behalf of both Petitioners and Patent Owners at the USPTO. Eugene is also deeply involved as trial counsel in all aspects of cases in Federal courts around the country (including the Eastern and Southern Districts of Texas, Northern District of Illinois, District of Delaware, District of Minnesota, Northern District of Alabama, Northern and Southern Districts of California, Northern District of Georgia, Western District of Missouri, and Southern District of New York), Section 337 investigations at the USITC, and in appeals at the Federal Circuit.

Eugene has authored a treatise titled the Trial Lawyer's Guide to Post Grant Patent Proceedings (published by LexisNexis), chapters in books discussing U.S. patent law and litigation (published by Chambers and Global Legal Group), and is a regular contributor to various IP publications. Eugene also serves on the Editorial Board of The Patent Lawyer, as the Editor-in-Chief of the PTAB Bar Association's Round-up of Round-ups, and lead editor of Westlaw's "Tips and Tricks at the PTAB."

Prior to joining Haynes and Boone, Eugene was a partner in the Chicago office of Kirkland & Ellis LLP where he was instrumental to the firm's post-grant review practice. He filed some of the first-ever IPR petitions, served as the firm's post-grant review trial practice knowledge manager, and co-founded the PTAB Bar Association. Before law school, Eugene worked as a software engineer for more than five years at Cardinal Health.
