PRACTICES Patent Office Trials, Vehicle Electrification, Intellectual Property

Gregory Huh is an experienced intellectual property (IP) attorney whose practice centers on patent trial and appeal proceedings before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO), with a particular focus on inter partes review (IPR) proceedings, ex parte reexaminations, litigation, and related appellate matters before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

With more than 15 years of experience in patent law, Gregory has represented both petitioners and patent owners in more than 150 inter partes review proceedings before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB). His practice also includes patent litigation, patent prosecution, patent portfolio analysis, patentability and invalidity opinions, and freedom-to-operate assessments.

Gregory's technical experience spans a broad range of technologies, including telecommunications, wireless communications, 5G and LTE standards, computer networking, semiconductor manufacturing, quantum computing, blockchain and distributed ledger technology, artificial intelligence and machine learning, software patents, and automotive powertrains and control systems.

Before entering the legal profession, Gregory earned bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering from the University of Michigan and worked as an electrical engineer. In that role, he led the development of calibration and control systems for various applications.
