PRACTICES Corporate, Capital Markets and Securities, Procurement and Supply Chain Management, Food, Beverage and Restaurant, Emerging Companies and Venture Capital, Aviation

Chelsea Leitch serves as a vital member of Haynes and Boone's Corporate Practice Group. Her practice focuses on structuring, drafting, and negotiating complex commercial agreements and related arrangements, bringing strategic legal insight and practical solutions into procurement and supply chain relationships. She is a trusted advisor for clients in a variety of industries, including aviation, food and beverage, automotive, banking, and manufacturing.

In addition, Chelsea regularly assists clients with securities-related matters, including public and private offerings of debt and equity securities, reporting obligations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, preparation of offering documents and registration statements, and corporate governance best practices and regulations.

Chelsea is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin and the University of Virginia School of Law. While at Virginia, she received the Rosenbloom Award, which recognizes an academically strong student who significantly enhanced the academic experience of others by volunteering support and assistance to them.
