PRACTICES Litigation, Insurance Recovery, Franchise and Distribution, Food, Beverage and Restaurant, International, Franchise Litigation, Trials

Wilson Miller is an associate in the Litigation Practice Group in Haynes Boone's Dallas office. Wilson represents clients in complex disputes concerning a variety of issues, including franchise and distribution networks, trademark infringement, contracts, fraud, defamation, business disparagement, and insurance recovery. Wilson takes a common-sense, business-oriented approach to each case, whether it requires a strongly negotiated settlement, or the aggressive defense or prosecution of his client's claims.

Wilson graduated from the University of Virginia School of Law. During law school, he was Vice President of Lambda Law Alliance, a peer advisor for first-year students, and a teaching assistant for the first-year legal research and writing course. Wilson also holds a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and Studio Art from Washington and Lee University. He continues his service to Washington and Lee as President of the Dallas Chapter of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association.
