PRACTICES Litigation

Elizabeth Wirmani is counsel in the Dallas and New York offices of Haynes Boone. Her practice focuses on complex business litigation disputes requiring a sophisticated and experienced legal strategy.

Elizabeth has deep experience in commercial litigation including contract enforcement, energy litigation, securities litigation, adversary proceedings in bankruptcy court, and trade secret, trademark litigation, and employment litigation. She has practiced before state courts, federal courts, appellate courts, and various administrative bodies.

Elizabeth previously was the Chief Operating Officer of a Dallas-based nonprofit. In that role, she gained extensive experience leading all core business functions, including governance, operational management/resource optimization, strategic design and planning, innovation and scale design, data management and evaluation, program management, risk evaluation and mitigation, finance, legal, human resources, and information technology. Elizabeth uses this experience to bring an informed legal and business perspective to her clients.
